It is aimed at all staff and volunteers in health and social care settings, all frontline staff at Greater Manchester Fire and Rescue Service, staff within Housing teams, Clerical and Administration staff, Adult Care staff who do not undertake front-line assessments, Domestic and Ancillary staff, Health and Safety Officers, other support staff, Elected Members, GP practice staff, Governing Boards and Safeguarding administrative support staff. This is not a definitive list.

Modern Slavery: Overview

It is a shocking fact that while most people consider the slave trade to have ended when slavery was abolished in 1833, there are more slaves today than ever before in human history. Figures from the International Labour Organisation (ILO) suggest that there are more than 40 million people in modern slavery across the world, with nearly 25 million held in forced labour.

Councillor Simon Blackburn

Chair, Local Government Association Safer and Stronger Communities Board (2017)

Based on police evidence, the 'It Still Happens Here' report produced by Justice and Care and The Centre for Social Justice, estimates that there are more than 100,000 victims of modern slavery in the UK today.

What is Modern Slavery?

Modern slavery is an umbrella term, encompassing human trafficking, slavery, servitude and forced labour. Someone is in slavery if they are:

- Forced to work through mental or physical threat
- Owned or controlled by an 'employer', usually through mental or physical abuse or the threat of abuse
- Dehumanised, treated as a commodity or bought and sold as 'property'
- Physically constrained or have restrictions placed on their freedom.

Servitude is similar to slavery, in that a person is under an obligation to provide a service which is imposed on them, but there is no element of ownership.

Forced work is defined as 'work or service' which is exacted from any person under the menace of any penalty and for which the person has not offered themselves 'voluntarily' and has been found in a number of different industries including manufacturing, food processing, agriculture and hospitality.

Finally, human trafficking is when men, women and children are moved and forced into exploitation. The movement could be international but also within the country, from one city to another or even just a few streets.

A person is a victim of human trafficking even if they haven't yet been exploited but have been moved for the purposes of exploitation.

Debt Bondage

This can be present in many forms of exploitation, and can take a range of forms. Debts may arise out of the exploitation itself, for example in relation to accommodation or travel fees, with victims having little or no control over their debt and little or no way to pay it back. Costs may be deducted from their wages, leading to further debts being accrued. A person may be forced to work to pay off the debt and it can also be used as a means of controlling a victim and keeping them enslaved.

Domestic Servitude

Victims work in a household where they may be ill-treated, humiliated, subjected to exhausting hours, forced to work and live under unbearable conditions or forced to work for little or no pay. In some cases forced marriage can lead to domestic servitude.

Financial Exploitation

For example benefit fraud, where benefits are falsely claimed by perpetrators on behalf of their workers; bank accounts being opened in a victim's name but used by perpetrators; or workers' wages being paid directly into the exploiters own bank accounts by companies who think they are paying a worker individually.

Forced Criminality

Victims can be forced to participate in a range of illegal activities including pick pocketing, shop lifting, cannabis cultivation, *county lines exploitation and other activities. Section 45 of The Modern Slavery Act 2015 Provides for a defence for victims who have been forced into criminality.

*County lines is the police term for urban gangs supplying drugs to suburban areas and towns using dedicated mobile phone lines – these are the county lines. It involves child criminal exploitation (CCE) as gangs use children as well as vulnerable adults to move drugs and money.

Forced Marriage

Where people are forced into marriage for a range of reasons, including exploiting the rights conferred on them by citizenship, or for domestic servitude.

Labour Exploitation

A victim is made to work with little or no pay, and may face violence or threats. If they are foreign nationals, their passports may be confiscated by their exploiters and they may be made to live in terrible conditions and under constant threat.

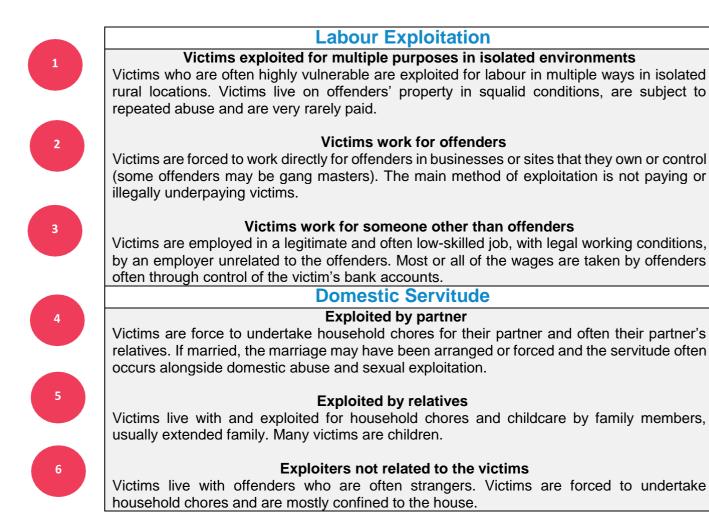

Organ Harvesting

Victims are trafficked in order for their internal organs (typically kidneys or the liver) to be harvested for transplant.

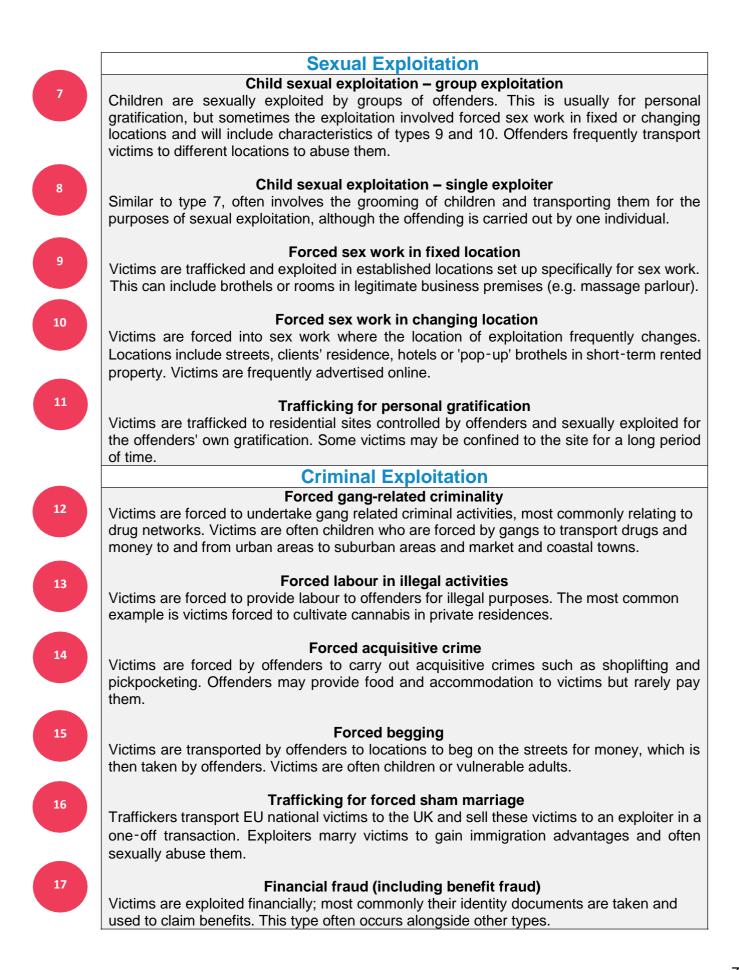

Sexual Exploitation

Victims may be forced into sex work, pornography or lap dancing for little or no pay. They may be deprived of their freedom of movement and subjected to threats and violence.

Victim Data

In the UK in 2019 10,627 people were referred to the National Referral Mechanism (NRM), a 52% increase from 2018.

The most common type of exploitation for both adults and minors identified in 2019 was labour exploitation.

British, Albanian and Vietnamese were the three most common nationalities to be referred into the National Referral Mechanism in 2019.

All up to date National Referral Mechanism statistics and data can be accessed here; National Referral Mechanism statistics - GOV.UK (www.gov.uk)

Indicators of a Potential Victim

- Distrustful of authorities
- Expression of fear or anxiety (including thoughts of self-harm or suicide)
- Signs of psychological trauma (including post-traumatic stress disorder)
- The person acts as if instructed by another
- Physical appearance appearing unkempt or malnourished
- Injuries apparently a result of assault or controlling measures
- Evidence of control over movement, either as an individual or as a group
- Restriction of movement and confinement to workplace or to a limited area
- Passport or documents held by someone else
- Lack of access to medical care
- Limited social contact / isolation
- Limited contact with family
- Signs of ritual abuse and witchcraft
- Substance or alcohol misuse
- Person forced, intimidated or coerced into providing services
- Victim doesn't know home or work address
- Perception of being bonded by debt

- Money is deducted from salary for food or accommodation
- Threat of being handed over to authorities
- Threats against the individual or their family members
- Being placed in a dependency situation
- No or limited access to bathroom or hygiene facilities
- Unwanted / underage pregnancy
- Inappropriate sexual behaviour
- Sexually transmitted diseases
- Incoherent / changing account of events
- Repeating a story that you have heard elsewhere

Where Can Adult Victims be Found or Identified?

Victims of modern slavery can be found or identified anywhere. There are certain industries where they are more prevalent, such as nail bars, car washes, agriculture and fishing, building sites, warehousing, manufacturing (sweatshops) and the sex industry. Other high risk situations include when there is a need for a sudden injection of workers into the work force, such as seasonal staff or construction for a major event. However, victims may also pass through transport hubs, health services and other public places or be found in private homes.

Victims Reaction

Victims may not recognise themselves as a victim or want to talk to the authorities or be formally referred for support. This should not prevent information about potential modern slavery being passed to the police (and completion of a Duty to Notify form for relevant organisations) which could help the police identify a crime.

Victims can be traumatised and there are a number of barriers that may make it difficult for them to come forward or co-operate with the authorities:

- Unaware they are a victim
- Unaware help is available
- Language barriers and / or mistrust in their interpreter (Crime gangs have been known to use corrupt interpreters)
- Controlled movement
- Fear of repercussions (for themselves or their families)
- Always accompanied by a perpetrator
- Isolation
- Feel they are still better off than in their home country situation
- Fears over immigration status
- Involvement in criminal activity
- Self-blame
- Stigma

The Legal Framework: Modern Slavery

International Framework

The Human Rights Act 1998 came into force in the UK in 2000 and within Section 6, articles 4 and 5, there is a description of the legal position in relation to Modern Slavery, although this does not specifically refer to human trafficking.

The UK Government also signed the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings in 2007 (ratified by the UK in 2008), which led to the creation of the UK's NRM in 2009, which is a victim identification and support process. This is designed to make it easier for all the different agencies that could be involved in a trafficking case (for example, the Police, Home Office, the National Crime Agency and Local Authorities) to co-operate, share information about potential victims and facilitate their access to advice, accommodation and support.

The Convention requires that potential victims of trafficking are provided with a period of a minimum of 30 days recovery and reflection, during which they will receive support, including accommodation, subsistence and access to relevant medical and legal services, and potential eligibility for discretionary leave to remain if they are recognised as a victim. The UK provides this support to potential victims referred to the NRM for a longer period of 45 days.

Domestic Framework

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 came into force in England and Wales in October 2015 and included a number of provisions extending existing support for victims of human trafficking (as above) to victims of slavery, servitude and forced and compulsory labour. The act also:

- Consolidates and simplifies existing offences into a single act
- Ensures that perpetrators receive suitably severe punishments for modern slavery crimes (up to and including life sentences)
- Introduces a legal defence for victims of slavery and trafficking if they have been forced into criminal activity
- Requires businesses over a certain size to disclose each year what action they have taken to ensure there is no modern slavery in their business or supply chains.

The Care Act 2014 came into force on 1 April 2015, which also specifically refers to modern slavery and the legal duties that Local Authorities have in relation to safeguarding adults.

Reporting Suspected Modern Slavery Offences

Any public sector worker identifying a potential victim of modern slavery should follow their organisation's own safeguarding procedures. This will include filling in a National Referral Mechanism (NRM) form or Duty to Notify form, if that is part of your organisation's safeguarding procedures as a first responder organisation.

Only first responder organisations can make a NRM referral:

- Police forces
- Departments within the Home Office:
 - UK Visas and Immigration
 - Border Force
 - Immigration Enforcement
 - National Crime Agency
- Local authorities
- Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority (GLAA)
- Health and social care trusts (Northern Ireland)
- Salvation Army
- Migrant Help

- Medaille Trust
- Kalayaan
- Barnardo's
- Unseen
- Tara Project (Scotland)
- NSPCC (CTAC)
- BAWSO
- New Pathways
- Refugee Council

Consider risks to others - 'Think Family'

Consideration must also be given as to whether anyone else is at risk. This may include children or other adults with care and support needs. Whilst actions may be limited in relation to the individual themselves, there may be a duty to take action to safeguard others. Should there be a concern regarding children in the care of a victim of modern slavery, concerns must be reported to Children's' Social Care. See: Think Family Guidance (signposted on page 14).

Additionally, anyone suspecting a case of modern slavery should always report this by using one of the following methods:

Phoning 999 if there is an immediate risk of harm.

Reporting to the police on 101 or the Modern Slavery Helpline on 08000 121 700 if there is not an immediate risk of harm.

The Gangmasters and Labour Abuse Authority (GLAA) on 0800 432 0804 or 03000 717678 (outside office hours) Email: intelligence@gla.gsi.gov.uk

Modern Slavery Human Trafficking Centre on 0370 4967622

You don't need to be sure that modern slavery is taking place or fully understand the types and definitions to report your concerns.
